26. Questions

Read the passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

In a significant move to modernize travel documentation, the government recently introduced the next-generation e-passport system. This new initiative aims to replace traditional paper booklets with advanced, chip-enabled documents. Designed to enhance security and streamline international travel, the modern e-passport features an embedded electronic microprocessor chip. This small chip securely stores the traveller's biometric information, including fingerprints, demographic data, and a digital photograph. By incorporating these digital elements, the passport becomes nearly impossible to forge, providing a robust shield against identity theft and document tampering.

Beyond security, the primary benefit of this upgrade is convenience at border control checkpoints. Travellers holding these new documents can utilize automated e-gates at major international airports. This automated process drastically cuts down waiting times, allowing passengers to bypass long queues for manual visa stamping. Several developed nations have already adopted this technology, and its rollout here aligns the country with global aviation standards. The transition will be carried out in a phased manner, ensuring that existing valid passports remain functional until their official expiry dates.

In addition to improving airport efficiency, this digital transformation marks a critical step forward for national security framework integrations. By linking the microprocessor data directly with centralized immigration databases, border security forces can instantly verify passenger identities with absolute precision. This seamless data synchronization significantly reduces human error during manual verification, while simultaneously building public trust in the country's defence infrastructure against cross-border fraud.

What is the primary purpose of introducing the new e-passport system?

- a. To completely eliminate the need for international visas.
- b. To enhance document security and modernize travel infrastructure.
- c. To reduce the printing costs of traditional paper booklets.
- d. To track the real-time location of citizens travelling abroad.
- e. To mandate a uniform fee structure for all international flights.

27. Questions

Which of the following data is NOT explicitly mentioned as being stored on the e-passport's microprocessor chip?

- a. Digital photograph
- b. Fingerprints
- c. Blood group
- d. Demographic data
- e. Biometric information

28. Questions

How does the new e-passport system benefit travellers at airports?

- a. By allowing them to travel completely free of charge.
- b. By automatically upgrading their tickets to business class.
- c. By eliminating the requirement for baggage screening.
- d. By reducing waiting times through automated e-gates.
- e. By providing free lounge access at all domestic terminals.

29. Questions

What will happen to citizens who currently hold traditional, valid paper passports?

- a. They must immediately exchange them for an e-passport.
- b. They can continue to use them until they officially expire.
- c. They will be barred from travelling internationally.
- d. They will have to pay a heavy penalty fine.
- e. They must manually register their details online within a week.

1. Questions

Answer: E

Why option E(No correction required) is right: The singular subject "making digital payments" correctly matches the singular verb has, the third verb form become, and the proper preposition for.

Why other options are wrong:

- (A). Uses plural verb have with a singular subject.
- (B). Uses became (V2) instead of become (V3) after the helper has.
- (C). Uses the incorrect preposition to instead of for.
- (D). Uses plural verb are.

2. Questions

Answer: B

Why the original phrase is wrong: The correlative pair "not only...but also" should maintain a parallel structure. Since "not only" is placed before the verb "keeps," the corresponding "but also" should directly precede the matching verb "helps." The original phrase also uses "help" instead of the singular verb "helps," because the subject "Regular cycling" is singular.

Why option (B) is right: It removes the unnecessary "it" and allows "but also" to connect directly to the matching singular verb "helps," creating a clear and parallel "not only...but also" structure.

Why other options are wrong:

- (A). Uses “as well as”, which cannot correctly complete the “not only...but also” construction.
- (C). Uses the continuous form “helping,” which does not maintain parallelism with “keeps.”
- (D). Uses the incorrect pronoun “its” and the wrong verb form “help” instead of “helps.”

Correct Sentence: Regular cycling not only keeps your heart healthy but also helps to reduce body fat.

3. Questions

Answer: B

Why the original phrase is wrong: The subject lists two items connected by 'and' (systems AND highways), making it plural. Using the singular verb has is a subject-verb agreement error.

Why option (B) is right: It correctly pairs the compound plural subject with the plural verb have and the proper past participle made.

Why other options are wrong:

- (A). Keeps the incorrect singular verb has and uses the base form make.
- (C). Uses the base form verb make instead of the required past participle made (V3).
- (D). Uses the singular present verb is.

Correct Sentence: Online booking systems and new highways have made travelling across the state very comfortable.

@RankZenBanker

4. Questions

Answer: C

Why the original phrase is wrong: The word “each” is singular and must be followed by a singular noun and singular verb. Therefore, “each loan instalment consist” is incorrect because “consist” should be “consists.” The correct expression is also “consists of,” not “consists with.”

Why option (C) is right: It correctly uses the singular noun “instalment,” the singular verb “consists,” and the correct preposition “of,” creating a grammatically correct phrase.

Why other options are wrong:

- (A). Uses the plural noun “instalments” after “each” and also uses “consist” instead of “consists.”
- (B). Uses the incorrect preposition “with” instead of “of.”
- (D). Uses “consist” instead of the required singular verb “consists” and the incorrect preposition “with” instead of “of.”

Correct Sentence: An amortization schedule is a detailed list where each loan instalment consists of principal and interest.

5. Questions

Answer: D

Why the original phrase is wrong: The word beside means physical location (“next to”). The sentence needs besides, which means "in addition to".

Why option (D) is right: It applies the correct word besides, follows it with a gerund noun (giving), and uses the right plural pronoun (they). Why other options are wrong:

(A). Uses the wrong location word beside and changes the plural pronoun to singular he.

(B). Uses a base verb give instead of the required continuous gerund form giving.

(C). Uses beside and pairs it incorrectly with the past participle given.

Correct Sentence: Good friends are necessary in life because besides giving helpful advice they always stay loyal to you.

6. Questions

Answer: B

B-E is correct: The company announced a special cash bonus for employees who met their annual sales targets.

C-F is correct: Before booking your train tickets online, you should always check the seat availability status.

A-D is incorrect: The modal verb must cannot take the singular verb adds. It requires the base form. change adds to add.

7. Questions

Answer: C

@RankZenBanker

A-F is correct: Drinking enough water every day can significantly improve your digestion and overall energy levels.

B-D is correct: The customer requested the bank clerk to update his phone number in the system as soon as possible.

16. Questions

Answer: B

The highlighted words are barren (unable to grow plants) and flourishing (growing successfully).

Option a: Loud means producing a lot of noise; Angry means showing strong displeasure. (Completely unrelated to soil or a forest).

Option b: Infertile means unable to support crops (synonym of barren); Thriving means growing very well (synonym of flourishing).

Option c: Fertile means highly productive (opposite of barren); Dying means losing life (opposite of flourishing).

Option d: Empty means containing nothing; Quiet means making little to no noise.

Hence option b is the correct answer.

17. Questions

Answer: C

The highlighted words are amazed (filled with great wonder) and delicious (highly pleasant to the taste).

Option a: Sleepy means tired or needing rest; Heavy means weighing a lot. (Completely unrelated to wonder or food flavour).

Option b: Bored means feeling tired due to a lack of interest (opposite of amazed); Tasteless means having no flavour at all (opposite of delicious).

Option c: Surprised means feeling wonder at something unexpected (synonym of amazed); Tasty means having an excellent flavour (synonym of delicious).

Option d: Scared means feeling fear or frightened; Sweet means tasting like sugar.

Hence option c is the correct answer.

18. Questions

Answer: D

The highlighted words are greedy (excessive desire for money) and humble (not proud or boasting).

Option a: Loud means making a lot of noise; Quick means moving fast. (Completely unrelated to personality traits).

Option b: Kind means caring and helpful (opposite of greedy); Proud means feeling superior or deeply satisfied with oneself (opposite of humble).

Option c: Rich means possessing great wealth; Lonely means sad because of a lack of companions.

Option d: Avaricious means extremely greedy for wealth or possessions (synonym of greedy); Modest means humble and not boastful (synonym of humble).

Hence option d is the correct answer.

19. Questions

Answer: C

The highlighted words are clear (allowing light to pass through without obstruction) and sharp (clear, well-defined, and showing fine details).

- Option a: Cold means having a low temperature; Slow means moving or happening at a low speed. (Neither word is related to clear or sharp.)
- Option b: Dark means having little or no light; Blurred means lacking clear or distinct details. (Both words are opposite or unrelated to the highlighted words.)
- Option c: Transparent means allowing light to pass through (synonym of clear); Crisp means clear, sharp, and well-defined (synonym of sharp).
- Option d: Clean means free from dirt or impurities; Heavy means having considerable weight. (Clean may be related to a clear lens, but it is not a direct synonym of clear in this context, and heavy is unrelated to sharp.)

Hence, option c is the correct answer.

20. Questions

Answer: A

The highlighted words are tough (hard or demanding) and prestigious (highly respected and admired).

Option a: Difficult means needing much physical or mental effort (synonym of tough); Reputed means highly respected and well-known (synonym of prestigious).

Option b: Simple means effortless or easy to do (opposite of tough); Common means ordinary or frequent (opposite of prestigious).

Option c: Long means measuring a great distance or extended time; New means recently created or introduced.

- b). increase means to make greater in size or amount (contradicts the goal of protecting them)
- c). praise means to express warm approval of (grammatically and contextually incorrect for "time")
- d). avoid means to keep away from completely (unrealistic for modern digital media handling)
- e). support means to encourage or give assistance to (leads to more exposure instead of less)

Hence option a is the correct answer.

26. Questions

Answer: B

The first paragraph explicitly states that the initiative aims to "modernize travel documentation", "enhance security", and "streamline international travel."

Why other options are incorrect:

A is incorrect: The passage mentions bypassing queues for visa stamping, but it never states that visas will be eliminated.

C is incorrect: Printing costs are not discussed anywhere in the text.

D is incorrect: The chip stores biometric and demographic data, not real-time GPS location tracking.

E is incorrect: Flight ticket fees are out of the scope of this passage.

27. Questions

Answer: C

The first paragraph lists the stored data as "biometric information, including fingerprints, demographic data, and a digital photograph." Blood group is never mentioned.

Why other options are incorrect:

A, B, D, and E are incorrect: These components are directly stated in the text as information stored on the embedded electronic chip.

28. Questions

Answer: D

The second paragraph states that travellers can use automated e-gates, which "drastically cuts down waiting times, allowing passengers to bypass long queues."

Why are other options incorrect:

@RankZenBanker

A is incorrect: The passage does not mention free travel.

B is incorrect: Ticket upgrades are entirely unrelated to the passport infrastructure described.

C is incorrect: Security screening for baggage is not mentioned or affected by the new passport type.

E is incorrect: Airport lounge access is completely irrelevant to the passage.

29. Questions

Answer: B

The final sentence confirms that the transition is phased, "ensuring that existing valid passports remain functional until their official expiry dates."

Why are other options incorrect:

A is incorrect: Immediate replacement is not mandatory because it is a "phased" rollout.

C and D are incorrect: The passage clearly states that current passports remain functional, so there are no travel bans or penalties applied to them.

E is incorrect: No such mandatory online registration timeline is stated in the passage.

30. Questions

Answer: B

In the context of the passage ("streamline international travel"), the word means to make a process smoother, more efficient, and simpler. Therefore, "Simplify" is the correct synonym.

Why are other options incorrect:

A, D, and E are incorrect: "Complicate", "Disorganize", and "Prolong" are antonyms, meaning the exact opposite of making a process smooth and efficient.

C is incorrect: "Postpone" means to delay, which does not fit the context of improving a travel system.

31. Questions

Answer: A

The passage mentions a "robust shield," meaning strong, tough, or resilient. The opposite of strong and resilient is "Fragile" (weak or easily broken).

Why are other options incorrect:

B, C, and E are incorrect: "Sturdy", "Secure", and "Resilient" act as synonyms or near-synonyms to robust in this context.

D is incorrect: "Massive" refers to physical size, which does not capture the strength/weakness dynamic of the word robust here.

32. Questions

Answer: A

The second paragraph explicitly states: "...and its rollout here aligns the country with global aviation standards."

Why are other options incorrect:

B is incorrect: The text states it replaces traditional paper booklets with chip-enabled documents, but it does not state the entire booklet is now made of plastic.

C is incorrect: The text explicitly contradicts this by stating "Several developed nations have already adopted this technology."

D is incorrect: The passage outlines that it stores biometric data, demographic data, and a photo—not financial or travel histories.

E is incorrect: The passage notes e-gates are utilized at "major international airports" to bypass queues for "manual visa stamping," meaning it is for international travellers.
