21. Questions

Read the following passage and answer the following questions.

The way people shop has changed rapidly over the last few years due to digital payment options. A major trend is the "Buy Now, Pay Later" system, which lets shoppers buy items immediately and split the cost into smaller portions. This option usually appears at online checkouts alongside traditional credit cards and debit cards. Many younger shoppers prefer this method because it feels less restrictive than older banking options.

For many consumers, the biggest draw of this payment method is that it avoids traditional interest charges. Instead of paying extra money over time like a credit card, users simply make fixed payments every two weeks. If a buyer pays everything back on schedule, the service remains completely free for them to use. This straightforward structure makes budgeting seem much simpler for people who want to manage their monthly expenses.

However, financial experts warn that this smooth process can encourage people to overspend on non-retail items. When a large price tag is broken down into small numbers, a luxury item can look like a regular daily purchase. Shoppers often end up buying multiple things at once, forgetting that all those minor payments add up quickly. Because it takes just one click to approve a loan, the natural pause before spending disappears.

The system also creates risks for people who miss their payment deadlines unexpectedly. While the setup is free at first, late fees can accumulate quickly if an account does not have enough funds. Some providers also report late payments to credit bureaus, which can lower a user's official score. This makes it harder for young adults to qualify for larger loans, like car financing or home mortgages, in the future.

Ultimately, this trend highlights a major shift in how modern society views personal debt and ownership. Paying later has become a normal part of the daily routine rather than a serious financial decision. As online shopping continues to grow, clear rules from regulators may be needed to protect consumers from falling into deep debt. Understanding the true cost of convenience is now a vital skill for every digital consumer.

Why do shoppers often end up buying multiple items simultaneously?

- a. Retail websites force them to bundle items together at checkout
- b. They receive massive discounts for buying more than three things
- c. The small, divided payment numbers hide the total accumulated cost
- d. They are trying to hit a minimum spending limit to avoid late fees
- e. They believe that the items will sell out if they do not act instantly

22. Questions

- a. Credit cards generally charge traditional interest over time, while on-time BNPL does not

- b. BNPL services can only be used by people who already own a house
- c. Credit cards never impact a user's long-term credit score
- d. BNPL options are exclusively available at physical, in-person store cash registers
- e. Credit cards do not allow users to buy items immediately at checkout

24. Questions

What is the main reason younger shoppers are drawn to "Buy Now, Pay Later" options?

- a. They want to replace their debit cards entirely
- b. They feel it offers more freedom than traditional banking methods
- c. They prefer shopping in physical stores rather than online
- d. They are looking for ways to build their credit scores quickly
- e. They only buy luxury goods that they cannot find elsewhere

25. Questions

What point does the author make in the passage regarding the psychology of split payments?

- a. It helps shoppers calculate the exact interest rates easily
- b. It prevents users from buying things they do not need
- c. It makes expensive items look like affordable, ordinary purchases

Explanations:

1. Questions

Answer: D

Third sentence = C

Fifth sentence = A

The correct order is: B → F → C → D → A → E

B introduces the topic of population decline.

F explains the factors contributing to this trend.

C describes the consequences of population decline.

D further elaborates on its negative impacts.

A presents measures taken by governments to address the issue.

E concludes by stating that, despite these measures, the problem remains difficult to solve.

2. Questions

Answer: E

The word "adversely" means in a harmful, unfavorable, or negative manner. Among the given options, "negatively" is the closest in meaning and fits the context perfectly.

@RankZen Banker

Significantly = considerably

Collectively = as a group

Indirectly = not directly

Gradually = slowly over time

Negatively = unfavorably, harmfully

3. Questions

Answer: A

The second sentence is F.

The correct order is: B → F → C → D → A → E

B introduces the topic of population decline.

F explains the factors contributing to this trend.

C describes the consequences of population decline.

D further elaborates on its negative impacts.

A presents measures taken by governments to address the issue.

E concludes by stating that, despite these measures, the problem remains difficult to solve.

4. Questions

Answer: A

The error is in Part P.

"this efforts" is incorrect because "this" is singular, whereas "efforts" is plural. "These" must be used because it modifies the plural noun "efforts."

The correct phrase should be "these efforts".

Correct sentence: Despite these efforts, reversing population decline remains a complex challenge influenced by social, economic, and cultural factors.

5. Questions

Answer: C

The last statement is E.

The correct order is: B → F → C → D → A → E

B introduces the topic of population decline.

F explains the factors contributing to this trend.

C describes the consequences of population decline.

D further elaborates on its negative impacts.

A presents measures taken by governments to address the issue.

@RankZen Banker

E concludes by stating that, despite these measures, the problem remains difficult to solve.

6. Questions

Answer: C

The word "responces" is misspelled. The correct spelling is "responses" (with an 's' instead of a 'c').

All other highlighted words are appropriate and spelled correctly:

Invisible: Correctly spelled; means hidden or not visible.

Influencing: Correctly spelled; means having an effect on something.

Consciously: Correctly spelled; means doing something with awareness or intent.

7. Questions

Answer: E

All the words printed in bold are spelled correctly and make perfect sense within the context of the sentence:

managing: Correctly spelled; contextually accurate as it refers to handling or overseeing personal finances.

convenient: Correctly spelled; fits well to describe how online banking saves effort and time.

easier: Correctly spelled; the comparative form is appropriate here to match "more convenient."

impulsively: Correctly spelled; an adverb meaning acting on a sudden whim or without forethought, which perfectly describes reckless spending.

8. Questions

Answer: D

While the word is spelled correctly, "altitude" is inappropriate in the context of this sentence. "Altitude" refers to the height of an object or place above sea level.

The correct word intended here is "attitude" (meaning a settled way of thinking or feeling), which fits perfectly alongside "habits" and "standards."

colleagues: Correctly spelled and contextually appropriate (the people you work with).

gradually: Correctly spelled and fits well (meaning slowly over time).

standards: Correctly spelled and contextually accurate (levels of quality or principles).

9. Questions

Answer: C

While "routed" is a real word (the past tense of "route" or "rout"), it is contextually inappropriate here.

The sentence is using a plant metaphor to describe friendships that are firmly established or deeply grounded. Therefore, the correct word is "rooted" (sharing deep roots).

disagreements: Correctly spelled and fits the context of conflicts between friends.

stronger: Correctly spelled; the comparative form is appropriate here.

tested: Correctly spelled and contextually accurate (meaning put through a trial or challenge).

10. Questions

Answer: B

The word "marely" is misspelled. The correct spelling is "merely" (meaning "just" or "only").

All other highlighted words are appropriate and spelled correctly:

iconic: Correctly spelled; means widely recognized and well-established as a symbol.

cultural: Correctly spelled; relates to the ideas, customs, and social behavior of a society.

reflecting: Correctly spelled; means showing, expressing, or mirroring something.

11. Questions

Answer: D

The sentence states that the university introduced a mentorship program for first-generation students who often struggle to navigate academic and professional opportunities. The purpose of such a program would be to support, strengthen, and enable these students to succeed. The word "empower" best conveys this meaning.

Why others are wrong:

(a). alienate – Means to make someone feel isolated or excluded, which is the opposite of the purpose of a mentorship program.

(b). overlook – Means to ignore or fail to notice, which does not fit the context.

(c). evaluate – Means to assess or judge; a mentorship program is designed to help students, not merely assess them.

(e). discourage – Means to reduce confidence or motivation, which contradicts the objective of mentorship.

12. Questions

Answer: B

The sentence discusses rapid deforestation of the Amazon rainforest and its impact on the ecological balance that supports thousands of species. Deforestation harms ecosystems and interferes with their normal functioning. Therefore, "disrupt" is the most appropriate word, as it means to disturb or interrupt the normal operation of something.

Why others are wrong:

(a). preserve – Means to protect or maintain, which is the opposite of what deforestation does.

(c). stabilize – Means to make something steady or secure; deforestation does not stabilize ecological balance.

(d). replenish – Means to restore or refill something that has been depleted, which does not fit the context.

(e). archive – Means to store records or documents for future reference and is unrelated to ecological balance.

13. Questions

Answer: C

The sentence states that several participants reported severe adverse reactions to the experimental drug during the clinical trial. In such a situation, the most logical action for the pharmaceutical company would be to temporarily stop the trial to investigate the safety concerns. The word "suspend" means to halt or pause something temporarily, making it the best fit.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). hasten – Means to speed up, which would be inappropriate when serious safety issues have arisen.
- (b). publicize – Means to make something widely known; it does not address the safety concerns in the trial.
- (d). expand – Means to increase the size or scope of something, which is unlikely after reports of severe adverse reactions.
- (e). monitor – Means to observe or keep track of something. While monitoring may occur, the sentence suggests a stronger action is needed in response to serious side effects.

14. Questions

Answer: E

The sentence describes a situation where panic selling during a market crash worsened the decline, leading to billions of dollars being wiped out in a short period. The word "accelerate" means to speed up or increase the rate of something, which perfectly fits the context of a downward spiral becoming more severe due to panic selling.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). reverse – Means to change direction completely, which is the opposite of worsening the downward spiral.
- (b). document – Means to record information and does not fit the context.
- (c). regulate – Means to control or manage, whereas panic selling intensifies the crash rather than controlling it.
- (d). predict – Means to forecast an event before it happens; panic selling does not predict a market decline but contributes to it.

@RankZen Banker

15. Questions

Answer: B

The sentence states that the journalist refused to do something with her sources, even under intense legal pressure, and that this refusal earned her respect. In journalism, protecting confidential sources is considered an important ethical responsibility. Therefore, the journalist's refusal to disclose (reveal) her sources is what earned her widespread respect.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). protect – Refusing to protect sources would be unethical and would not earn respect.

(c). fabricate – Means to invent or make up information. Journalists are expected not to fabricate sources in any case.

(d). verify – Means to confirm the accuracy of something. Refusing to verify sources would damage credibility.

(e). celebrate – Means to honor or praise. Refusing to celebrate sources does not fit the context.

16. Questions

Answer: A

This sentence expresses a third conditional (an unreal situation in the past and its imagined result).

Structure:

If + Past Perfect, ... would have + past participle would have upgraded in the if-clause is incorrect in standard conditional grammar.

Let's look at the options:

(a). had upgraded the urban drainage networks - Correct (Past Perfect)

(b). upgraded the urban drainage networks - Simple Past; does not fit the third conditional structure.

(c). should upgrade the urban drainage networks - Incorrect. Wrong modal construction and tense.

(d). has upgraded the urban drainage networks - Present Perfect; incorrect for this past hypothetical situation.

Correct sentence: If the municipal corporation had upgraded the urban drainage networks last winter, the severe waterlogging during the monsoon would have been entirely averted.

17. Questions

Answer: C

The phrase "owing to the reason that" is wordy and redundant. The sentence requires a concise and grammatically correct expression of cause.

Let's look at the options:

(a). because of the reason that a sudden geomagnetic storm – Incorrect. "Because of the reason that" is also redundant and awkward.

(b). due to the fact of sudden geomagnetic storm – Incorrect. Grammatically incorrect; it lacks the required conjunction "that".

(c). because a sudden geomagnetic storm – Correct. "Because" introduces a finite clause ("because + subject + verb"), making the sentence concise and grammatically natural.

(d). on account of a sudden geomagnetic storm being – Grammatically awkward in the context of the sentence.

Correct sentence: The space agency delayed the satellite launch because a sudden geomagnetic storm was detected in the upper thermosphere.

18. Questions

Answer: B

The sentence uses the singular verb "suspends" after a recommendation clause. Verbs expressing commands or recommendations (like recommended) followed by "that" trigger the subjunctive mood, which strictly requires the base form of the verb.

Let's look at the options:

(a). should suspending all high-value transactions – Incorrect. After the modal verb "should", the base form of the verb must be used. Therefore, "should suspending" is grammatically incorrect; it should be "should suspend."

(b). suspend all high-value transactions – Correct. "Suspend" is the base form required by the subjunctive mood to match the subject "the branch manager".

(c). suspended all high-value transactions – Incorrect. The past tense violates the subjunctive rule for recommendations.

(d). would suspend all high-value transactions – Incorrect. The modal verb "would" is incorrect in a mandate clause.

Correct sentence: The review committee explicitly recommended that the branch manager suspend all high-value transactions until the forensic audit team finishes verifying the discrepancies.

19. Questions

Answer: D

The sentence uses the correlative conjunction pair "not only ... but also ...". For such constructions, parallelism must be maintained. Since the first part uses the infinitive form "to balance", the second part should also use the infinitive form "to cultivate".

The phrase "to balance the internal physiological systems but also cultivating" violates parallel structure because it mixes "to balance" (infinitive) with "cultivating" (gerund).

Let's look at the options:

(a). for balancing the internal physiological systems but also cultivating – Incorrect. Does not maintain proper structure with "not only...but also".

(b). balance the internal physiological systems but also cultivating – Incorrect. Uses a bare infinitive on one side and a gerund on the other.

(c). to balance the internal physiological systems but also it cultivates – Incorrect. Lacks parallelism and creates an awkward sentence structure.

(d). to balance the internal physiological systems but also to cultivate – Correct. Maintains parallelism between "to balance" and "to cultivate".

Correct sentence: The ancient practice of Yoga aims not only to balance the internal physiological systems but also to cultivate a state of deep mental tranquility.

20. Questions

Answer: E

The phrase “eat into” is an idiomatic expression meaning to gradually reduce or deplete something (especially money, time, or resources). The given sentence already uses the correct idiom and is both grammatically and idiomatically appropriate.

Let’s look at the options:

- (a). eat away your monthly pocket money – Incorrect. The correct idiom would be “eat away at,” not “eat away” directly.
- (b). eat up to your monthly pocket money – Incorrect. This is not a valid idiomatic usage.
- (c). eat down into your monthly pocket money – Incorrect and unnatural expression.
- (d). eat off your monthly pocket money – Incorrect. Not an accepted idiom in this context.
- (e). No improvement needed – Correct. The phrase “eat into your monthly pocket money” is idiomatic and appropriate.

21. Questions

Answer: C

The passage states that “Shoppers often end up buying multiple things at once, forgetting that all those minor payments add up quickly.” It further explains that when a large price tag is broken down into smaller amounts, even expensive products can seem like ordinary purchases. This causes shoppers to focus on the small installments rather than the total cost, leading them to buy multiple items. Therefore, option (c) is correct.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). The passage does not mention that retail websites force customers to bundle products together.
- (b). There is no indication that shoppers receive large discounts for purchasing multiple items.
- (d). The passage discusses late fees for missed payments but does not mention any minimum spending requirement to avoid them.
- (e). The passage does not suggest that shoppers buy items because they fear the products will sell out. The reason given is the misleading effect of smaller installment amounts.

22. Questions

Answer: E

@RankZen Banker

In Paragraph 4, the word "accumulate" is used in the sentence:

“While the setup is free at first, late fees can accumulate quickly if an account does not have enough funds.”

Here, accumulate means to gather, build up, increase, or grow over time. Since the question asks for the opposite of the word, we need a word that means to become less or reduce.

Therefore, "decrease" is the correct antonym of "accumulate."

Why others are wrong:

- (a). Gather – This is similar in meaning to accumulate, not opposite.
- (b). Collect – To collect means to bring together or accumulate.
- (c). Grow – Grow means to increase, which is close to the meaning of accumulate.
- (d). Multiply – Multiply means to increase in number or amount, the opposite of decrease.

23. Questions

Answer: A

The passage states that the biggest attraction of BNPL services is that they avoid traditional interest charges. It explains that, unlike traditional credit cards, many BNPL services do not charge interest if payments are made on time. This directly supports option (a).

Why others are wrong:

- (b). The passage does not mention any requirement that users must own a house to access BNPL services.
- (c). The passage indicates that payment behavior can affect a user's credit score, so it is incorrect to say that credit cards never impact long-term credit scores.
- (d). The passage specifically states that BNPL options appear at online checkouts, not exclusively at physical store cash registers.
- (e). Credit cards also allow users to purchase items immediately and pay later, so this statement is incorrect.

24. Questions

Answer: B

The passage states that “Many younger shoppers prefer this method because it feels less restrictive than older banking options.” This indicates that younger consumers are attracted to BNPL services because they perceive them as offering greater flexibility and freedom compared to traditional banking methods. Therefore, option (b) is correct.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). The passage does not suggest that younger shoppers want to completely replace their debit cards.
- (c). In fact, the passage discusses BNPL in the context of online checkouts, not a preference for physical stores.
- (d). The passage does not mention that younger shoppers use BNPL primarily to build their credit scores.
- (e). Although luxury items are mentioned as an example of potential overspending, the passage does not state that younger shoppers only purchase luxury goods.

25. Questions

Answer: C

The passage states that “When a large price tag is broken down into small numbers, a luxury item can look like a regular daily purchase.” This highlights the psychological effect of split payments: consumers focus on the small installment amounts rather than the total cost, making expensive products seem more affordable and encouraging additional spending. Therefore, option (c) is correct.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). The passage does not mention that split payments help shoppers calculate interest rates.
- (b). The author argues the opposite—that split payments can encourage overspending on non-essential items.
- (d). The passage states that “the natural pause before spending disappears” because approval takes just one click, so split payments do not force a pause.
- (e). The passage discusses online shopping and digital payment systems, not increased visits to physical retail stores.

26. Questions

Answer: D

The passage states that “If a buyer pays everything back on schedule, the service remains completely free for them to use.” This means that BNPL services do not charge extra fees or interest as long as the user makes all the required payments on time. Therefore, option (d) is correct.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). The passage does not mention any government subsidy for BNPL services.
- (b). BNPL allows shoppers to split the cost into smaller payments, so they do not have to pay the entire balance at checkout.
- (c). There is no indication that credit card companies pay the interest fees on behalf of BNPL users.
- (e). The passage does not mention any requirement to watch advertisements before making purchases.

27. Questions

Answer: E

The passage states that “late fees can accumulate quickly if an account does not have enough funds.” This means that when a scheduled BNPL payment cannot be processed because the user's account lacks sufficient money, late fees begin to build up. Therefore, option (e) is correct.

Why others are wrong:

- (a). The passage does not mention closing a traditional bank account as a cause of late fees.
- (b). Credit bureaus may receive reports about late payments, but they do not directly trigger late fees.
- (c). There is no discussion of retailers increasing prices after a purchase has been made.
- (d). Applying for a car loan and a home mortgage simultaneously is not linked to the accumulation of late fees in the passage.

28. Questions

Answer: C

The verb "help" follows a specific grammatical rule when it is connected to another action. It can take either a bare infinitive (the base form of the verb without "to") or a to-infinitive.

Structure 1: help + object + base verb (e.g., help them open)

Structure 2: help + object + to + base verb (e.g., help them to open)

Because "farmers" is plural, adding an "s" to the verb (opens) breaks this rule and makes it grammatically incorrect. It must strictly be the base form, open.

Correct sentence: Many public sector banks are opening new branches in remote villages to help poor farmers open savings accounts without facing any difficult paperwork.

29. Questions

Answer: E

This is an error of parallelism (maintaining the same grammatical form for words in a list or comparison).

The conjunction "and" connects two characteristics of the ride. The first characteristic uses the comparative degree adjective "quieter". Therefore, the second adjective must also be in the comparative degree ("smoother") to match. Mixing a comparative adjective (quieter) with a positive degree adjective (smooth) breaks the parallel structure of the sentence.

Correct sentence: Introducing electric buses in major metropolitan areas will drastically reduce vehicular emissions and provide a much quieter and smoother ride for daily commuters.

30. Questions

Answer: D

The modal verb "can" acts on two verbs connected by "and": cause and lowers.

It must be the base form lower to match "cause" (can cause... and lower...).

Correct sentence: Doctors always advise patients to drink sufficient water daily because dehydration can cause severe headaches and lower your overall concentration levels at work.

31. Questions

Answer: C

This is a number agreement error. The determiner "every single" is always followed by a singular countable noun because it refers to each individual person or thing separately. Using the plural noun "players" after "every single" is grammatically incorrect. Therefore, "players" should be changed to "player."

Correct sentence: Winning a major cricket tournament requires immense dedication from every single player along with consistent guidance from a highly experienced head coach.

32. Questions

Answer: D

This is a gerund vs. infinitive error. The verb "stop" requires a gerund (an -ing verb acting as a noun) when it means to permanently or temporarily cease an ongoing action or habit.

Using the base form "distribute" directly after "stopped" is grammatically incorrect.

Correct sentence: Since plastic bags damage the environment severely, many supermarkets have completely stopped distributing them and are now encouraging people to carry cloth bags.
