21. Questions

Read the following passage carefully and answer the questions that follow.

India has one of the world's youngest populations, with nearly 65% of its citizens below the age of 35. This demographic advantage has encouraged governments, educational institutions, and private organizations to invest in developing leadership skills among young people. However, experts argue that leadership is not merely about holding positions of authority but about influencing positive change through vision, responsibility, and ethical decision-making. A recent survey conducted among 5,000 university students across 18 Indian states found that 72% believed integrity was the most essential quality of an effective leader. 68% valued communication skills, while 61% emphasized empathy. Interestingly, only 38% considered academic excellence alone to be a defining leadership trait. These findings suggest that young Indians increasingly associate leadership with interpersonal and ethical qualities rather than technical expertise alone.

Several initiatives have contributed to this shift. Leadership development programmes offered by educational institutions encourage students to participate in debates, social service activities, entrepreneurship cells, and innovation challenges. Participation in such activities allows students to develop teamwork, conflict resolution, and problem-solving skills beyond classroom learning. According to the survey, students involved in extracurricular leadership programmes were 27% more likely to express confidence in managing teams than those who participated only in academic activities. Technology has further transformed leadership opportunities. Digital platforms enable young leaders to organize awareness campaigns, raise funds for social causes, and collaborate with volunteers across different states. During recent environmental drives and disaster-relief campaigns, thousands of student volunteers coordinated online, demonstrating that leadership today often depends on collaboration rather than hierarchy.

Nevertheless, challenges remain. Many young leaders report difficulties in balancing academic responsibilities with leadership roles. Others point to limited access to mentorship, especially in rural institutions. The survey revealed that 54% of respondents believed regular mentoring programmes would significantly improve leadership development, while 46% suggested that practical leadership projects should receive greater emphasis than theoretical instruction. Experts conclude that India possesses enormous leadership potential among its youth. However, realizing this potential requires sustained investment in ethical education, communication skills, mentorship, and opportunities for practical experience. In the coming decade, the quality of leadership demonstrated by today's students may influence not only workplaces but also communities and national development.

Which of the following best captures the central idea of the passage?

- a. Academic excellence is the primary requirement for becoming a successful leader.
- b. Young Indians increasingly recognize leadership as a combination of ethical values, practical experience, and interpersonal skills.

- c. Rural institutions produce better leaders than urban institutions.
- d. Technology has completely replaced traditional leadership qualities.

@RankZen Banker

Explanations:

1. Questions

Answer: A

The sentence describes an action (painting) that was completed before another action in the past ("the guests arrived"). Therefore, the past perfect tense (had + past participle) is required.

Rule: Use the past perfect to indicate that one past action was completed before another past action.

Analysis of Other Options

b). Incorrect because the past continuous indicates an action that was in progress, whereas the sentence requires a completed action.

c). Incorrect because the simple present does not fit the past-time context.

d). Incorrect because has painted (present perfect) cannot normally be used with a specific past-time reference ("before the guests arrived").

Corrected sentence: Before the guests arrived, the workers had painted the entire front wall with weather-resistant paint.

2. Questions

Answer: D

@RankZen Banker

After verbs such as insist, recommend, demand, suggest, request, the subjunctive mood is used. The verb remains in its base form, regardless of the subject.

Rule: Subject + insisted that + Subject + base verb

Analysis of Other Options

a). Incorrect because the continuous form does not follow the subjunctive structure.

b). Incorrect because the past tense is not used in a subjunctive clause.

c). Incorrect because the future tense is not used after insisted that.

Corrected sentence: The principal insisted that every student submit the permission form before joining the educational tour.

3. Questions

Answer: A

The fundraising was completed before the charity event began. Hence, the past perfect tense is required.

Rule: Use had + past participle when one completed past action happened before another past action.

Analysis of Other Options

b). Incorrect because the present perfect is not used with a definite past reference.

c). Incorrect because the sentence refers to a completed achievement, not an ongoing action.

d). Incorrect because the simple present is unsuitable for the past context.

Corrected sentence: By the time the charity event began, volunteers had raised more than ten lakh rupees through community donations.

4. Questions

Answer: C

This sentence expresses a second conditional, referring to a hypothetical present or future situation.

Rule: If + Simple Past, Subject + would + base verb

Analysis of Other Options

a). Incorrect because the past perfect forms a third conditional, referring to unreal situations in the past.

b). Incorrect because the simple present is generally used for real conditions, not hypothetical ones.

d). Incorrect because the singular verb receives does not agree with the plural subject trees.

Corrected sentence: If the coconut trees received adequate rainfall during the growing season, they would produce a higher yield.

5. Questions

Answer: A

After reporting verbs such as recommend, suggest, propose, require, the clause takes the subjunctive mood, which uses the base form of the verb.

@RankZen Banker

Rule: Subject + recommended that + Subject + base verb

Analysis of Other Options

b). Incorrect because the past tense is not used in the subjunctive construction.

c). Incorrect because the future tense is inappropriate after recommended that.

d). Incorrect because the continuous tense does not follow the required grammatical pattern.

Corrected sentence: The central bank recommended that commercial banks maintain higher liquidity reserves during periods of financial uncertainty.

6. Questions

Answer: C

Sentence I: Correct. The sentence is grammatically sound. The subject "Mobile applications" agrees with the verb "have become," and the list "communication, learning, and entertainment" is properly structured.

Sentence II: Correct. The sentence correctly uses the fixed expression "rely on" and maintains proper grammatical structure throughout.

Sentence III: Incorrect. The adjective capable is followed by the preposition of, not to.

7. Questions

Answer: A

Sentence I: Correct. The connector "so that" is appropriately used to express purpose.

Sentence II: Incorrect. The preposition despite should not be followed by of.

Sentence III: Correct. The phrase "because of" is correctly used to indicate reason.

8. Questions

Answer: B

Sentence I: Correct. The infinitive phrase "to strengthen maritime cooperation and security" correctly expresses purpose.

Sentence II: Correct. The phrase "focused on" is correctly followed by gerunds: "search-and-rescue operations" and "improving coordination."

Sentence III: Incorrect. "if they would notice it" is incorrect conditional usage. The correct form should be: "...if they noticed it during patrol." Using "would notice" here is grammatically faulty and redundant with "if."

9. Questions

Answer: C

Sentence I: Incorrect. The conjunction although and the coordinating conjunction but should not be used together in the same sentence.

Sentence II: Correct. The connector "because" correctly introduces the reason for increased investments.

Sentence III: Correct. The verb "contribute" appropriately follows the plural subject "policies."

10. Questions

Answer: E

Sentence I: Correct. The phrase "before appearing for the examination" is grammatically correct.

Sentence II: Correct. The conjunction "because" properly introduces the reason for success.

Sentence III: Correct. The structure "focus on understanding concepts rather than merely memorizing facts" is grammatically and logically sound.
